

Our Motivation

Specialized in clinical investigations & evaluations, we offer a comprehensive service as a contract research organization (CRO) for manufacturers of innovative medical devices.

In order to cope with our interdisciplinary tasks, we are looking for scientists, physicians or medical engineers who are interested in the constantly developing medical technology industry.

Scientist, Physician or Medical Engineer (m/f/d) as Clinical Research & Regulatory Affairs Manager - CRO

Your Responsibility

- Developing of regulatory & clinical research strategies for planned clinical trials
- Working with competent authorities, ethics committees, international study teams & sponsors
- Understanding customer needs & building collaborative customer relationships
- Preparing & handling of essential study documents
- Reviewing design history files, literature & compiling investigator brochures
- As an expert, contributing with innovative ideas to continuously improve and expand our services

Your Impact

- University degree in life sciences, medicine, medical engineering or related fields
- Working experience at a medical device manufacturer or a CRO in the approval and execution of international clinical studies
- Expert knowledge of the medical device sector & clinical trial process
- Comprehensive experience in regulatory requirements of medical devices (MDR EU2017/745, MPDG, ISO 14155, ISO 14971), country specific requirements
- Analytical and results-oriented working attitude, project management skills

Your Chance

- Responsibility in a multi-functional & committed international team
- Attractive location with modern & well-equipped workplaces
- Good development opportunities in a modern working environment

Talent & commitment are the key and that's why we need YOU! Join our team and help us realise our mission!